

Taking the Group Seriously (1998, Jessica Kingsley Publishers)

Farhad Dalal

Contents

Forward by Malcom Pines	9
Introduction	11.
Chapter 1: Freud
Introduction	17
Freud: culturalist or nativist?	19
Freud: idealist or materialist?	20
The Freudian infant	21
The development of psychological structures	22
Phylogeny	26
In and between groups	27
The Freudian view of groups	30
Summary	32
Chapter 2: Foulkes
Introduction	33
The basis of Foulkes' radical ideas	34
Foulkes' developmental model	39
Modifying the Freudian developmental frame	44
Between the internal and the external.	49
Recasting the life and death Instincts	50
Some group-specific ideas	52
Levels of perception	59
The matrix	62
A summary of the ideas of radical Foulkes	64
Application of the theories	66
Hostility and aggression	71
Summary	76

Chapter 3: Interlude between Foulkes and Elias.

Interlude - figuring out the ground	77
An overview of structuralism and post-structuralism	80

Chapter 4: Elias.

Introduction	87
Figuration	88
Power relations	90
Symbol theory	92
A bird's eye view	110
Dirty talk: politics	113
More dirty talk: ideology	115

Chapter 5: Biology

Introduction	127
Hot air and desire	129
Order and chaos	130
The co-operative gene	132
The evolution of culture	142
The return of group selection	149
Free will and determinism	150
A summary	155

Chapter 6: Elements of a Post-Foulkesian Group Analytic Theory.

Introduction	157
Belonging	159
Overview of Matte-Blanco's Theory	162
The Structure of Thought	165
A Digression: Bion	166
Increasing the complexities of belonging	169
Two essentialist fallacies	170
Identity crisis	173
The emotional need to belong	177
From here to infinity: further structures of thinking	179
Name-calling and hair-splitting: a critique of splitting	184
A reprise	188
Identity as unconsciousness	190
Self and identity: ego and wego	192
Conflict	195
Power relations in action	203
The social unconscious	209
Cultural transmission and cohesion	213
The therapy group	218
Constraint and order: a summary	224